HOW CLOUDS FORM

The air outside always contains a certain amount of water vapor (that is, water in the form of gas), which is invisible. When air cools, some of the water vapor eventually condenses; that is, it forms tiny, visible water droplets. These droplets form around tiny particles, such as dust and grains of salt from ocean spray, that are in the air. If the droplets are on the ground they are called dew, if near the ground they are called fog or mist, and if up in the sky they are called clouds. In the case of clouds, the droplets form when the moist air rises, since air cools as it rises.

Taj Mahal

In the city of Agra in northern India lies the mausoleum (tomb) complex known as the Taj Mahal. Made out of white marble and decorated with gemstones, the mausoleum is considered one of the most beautiful buildings in the world. In 1983 the Taj Mahal was designated as a World Heritage site by the United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).

The Taj Mahal was built by a ruler named Shah Jahan as a monument and tomb for his beloved wife, Mumtaz Mahal. Jahan was the Muslim ruler of the Mughal Empire in India from 1628 to 1658. From the time of their marriage in 1612 to her death in childbirth in 1631, Shah Jahan and his wife were near-constant companions.

Construction of the Taj Mahal began in 1632. Some 20,000 people from India, Persia, and other countries worked for 22 years to complete the project.
